In honor of Asian-Pacific American Heritage month, Ambassador Sichan Siv, former U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations, will discuss and sign copies of his international best-selling book, Golden Bones: An Extraordinary Journey from Hell in Cambodia to a New Life in America.* This event is free to attend; however, reservations are recommended. Reagan's Country Café will remain open until 6:00 p.m. for those who would like to purchase a snack or dinner.

Captured and forced to perform slave labor by Khmer Rouge Communists, Sichan Siv feared that he'd be worked to death or killed. It was only a matter of time. But he never abandoned hope or his improbable dream of freedom—a dream that liberated him, astonishingly, from his brutal captors and ultimately led him to the United States, where he later became a senior White House aide.

Golden Bones is an extraordinary story of almost unimaginable hardship and remarkable courage by a survivor whose triumph over terror and adversity serves as a shining inspiration to us all.

Sichan Siv served as a U.S. ambassador to the United Nations from 2001 to 2006, and as deputy assistant to the president for public liaison and deputy assistant secretary of state for South Asia from 1989 to 1993. Ambassador Siv holds a Masters of International Affairs from Columbia University. He and his wife spend their time in San Antonio, New York, and beyond.
